

David Alicea is Sierra Club's NY Field Manager supporting a team of field organizers and setting the strategic direction for organizing efforts focused on climate and energy issues. David started at Sierra Club leading our on-the-ground efforts to secure an offshore wind program and later transitioned to lead efforts to retire New York's coal-fired power plants and scale up land-based wind and solar. Prior to Sierra Club, David worked on various political campaigns in the NY metro area and he has a Bachelor's Degree in political science from Stony Brook University and a Master's in Environmental Communication from SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry. David was born and raised on Long Island and now lives with his family outside of Rochester, NY. He serves as the grants director for Wat Pa Lao Buddadham and on the board of the Laotian American Scholarship Foundation.
